FABRIC DECOR

MOSAIC COLORS 10x10

Dai tessuti di George Nelson al funzionalismo degli Eames: il mosaico si fa ortogonale

La nuova collezione Fabric nasce dalle suggestioni del Modernismo americano, dalla purezza strutturale del design di George Nelson passando attraverso il funzionalismo delle creazioni dei coniugi Eames.

Con la stessa dirompenza con cui il mobile diveniva oggetto di design, eliminando ogni abbellimento a favore della funzione primaria, Fabric scandisce gli spazi seguendo traiettorie perpendicolari, creando una trama che ripercorre ipotetiche linee progettuali in costruzione.

Fabric è progetto prima che accessorio, funzione prima che ornamento, audacia prima che dettaglio.

Un intreccio di linee dritte e squadrate, capaci di fondere design e arredo, in uno stile minimal che unisce praticità e sobrietà.

La sensazione è quella di un tessuto dai tratti artigianali, in cui trama e ordito di materiali lucidi e opachi, a contrasto o tono su tono, creano una texture dalla densità variabile.

Fabric è ritmo: regala respiro negli ambienti dalle dimensioni ridotte, esalta i volumi di quelli ampi.

From George Nelson's fabrics to the functionalism of Charles and Ray Eames: mosaic gets right-angles

The new Fabric collection is inspired by American Modernism, from the structural purity of George Nelson's design work through the functionalism found in the creations of Charles and Ray Eames.

With the same revolutionary impetus which made furniture into design objects, sweeping away embellishment to focus on primary function, Fabric defines spaces by drawing perpendicular trajectories, creating a pattern of hypothetical structural lines.

Fabric is more architecture than accessory, more primary function than ornament, more daring statement than fine detail.

Interwoven straight and perpendicular lines that merge design and interior decoration in a minimalist style, both practical and essential.

The impression is that of a hand-woven fabric, in which warp and weft of shiny and matt materials, in contrasting or matching shades, create a texture of variable density.

Fabric is rhythm, enhancing the space of small rooms and exalting the volumes of large interiors.
